Anti-Racism & Health Equity Workshop for P2 Grantees

Phyllis Carter, Crystal Dixon, Jennifer Erausquin, Ann Lennon, Christina Yongue
Department of Public Health Education & The Partnership Project
Our Partners

Phyllis Carter,
Director, The Partnership Project

Ann Lennon,
Organizing member, The Partnership Project
Over the past sixteen years The Partnership Project and The Greensboro Health Disparities Collaborative have used their understanding of the historical concept of race and power to conduct a breast cancer research project and host Anti-Racism workshops in and around Guilford County, North Carolina.

The mission is to establish structures that respond to, empower and facilitate communities in defining and resolving issues related to racial disparities.

The Partnership Project has a strong history of mobilizing communities and institutions in Guilford County through our Racial Equity trainings and community outreach.
What is Health?
What is Equity?
What is Health Equity?

Ensuring that those who begin with less than, have what they need in order to access optimal health, without barriers, and with a sense of community inclusion and support.
What are our Anti-Racism Principles?

Learning from your History
Sharing Culture
Developing Leadership and Networking
Maintaining Accountability
Analyzing Power
Investigating Gatekeeping
Undoing Internalized Racial Oppression
Learning from Your History
Analyzing Power
1. Who are the members of your team?
2. What are your backgrounds, and where are the potential biases?
3. Whose voices are present? Whose voices are missing?
4. What are your decision-making procedures for your team? Who has the final say?